

The thankful turkey

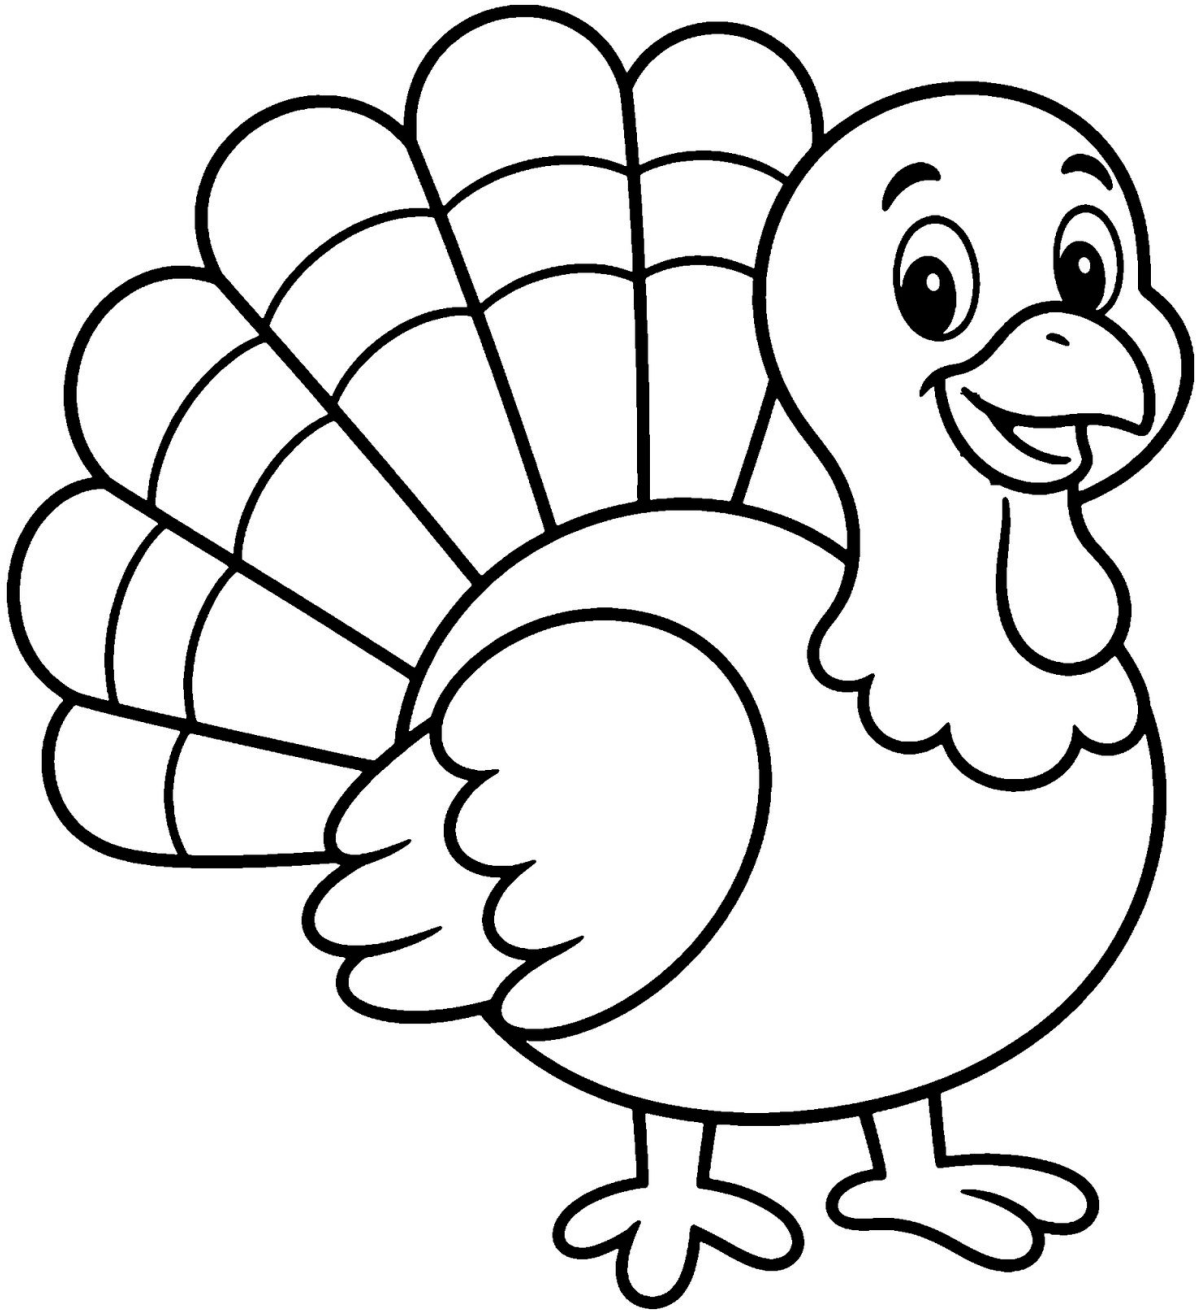

Seven big, empty feathers. Write or draw one thankful thing in each, then color him in.

The feather I'm MOST thankful for:

A happy turkey

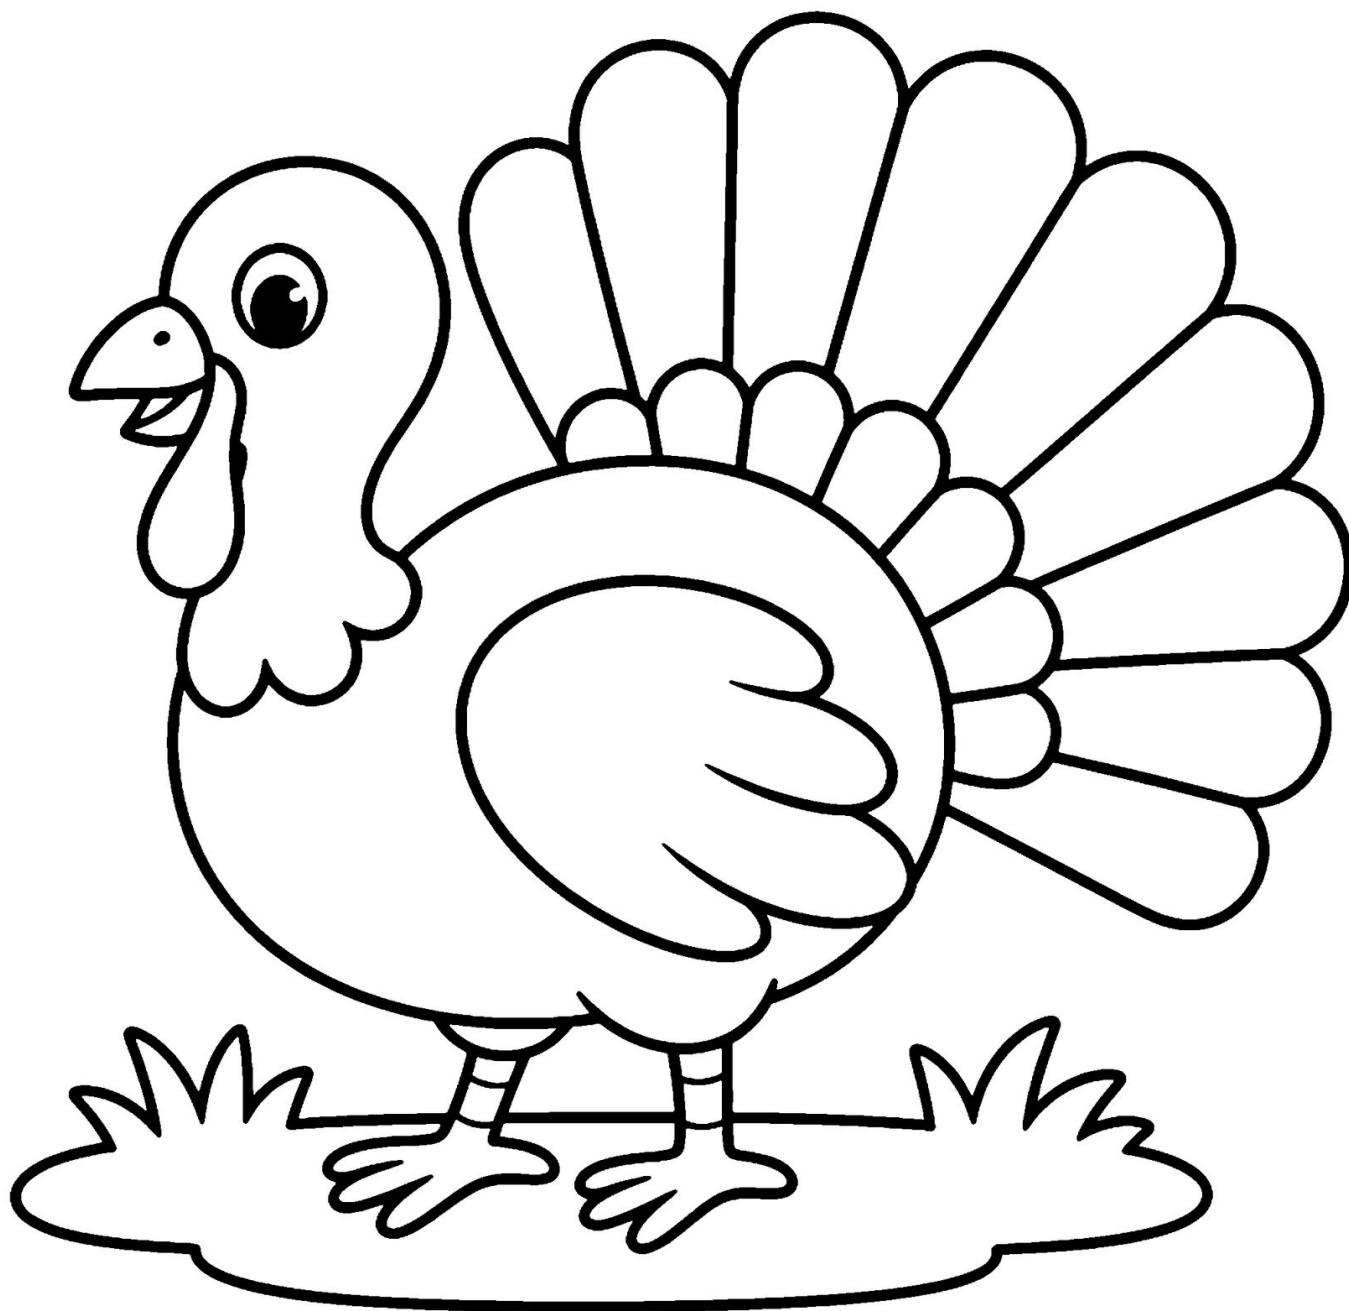

Big tail feathers, a wobbly wattle and a big smile. Real turkeys are brown and bronze, but yours can be any color.

A food I am thankful for:

The turkey out for a walk

He opens his tail like a big paper fan and struts across the grass.

Someone I like to go for walks with:

Two pumpkins

A big one and a little one, with curly vines. Orange is the classic, but white and green pumpkins are real too.

Someone big and someone little I love:

Three pumpkins

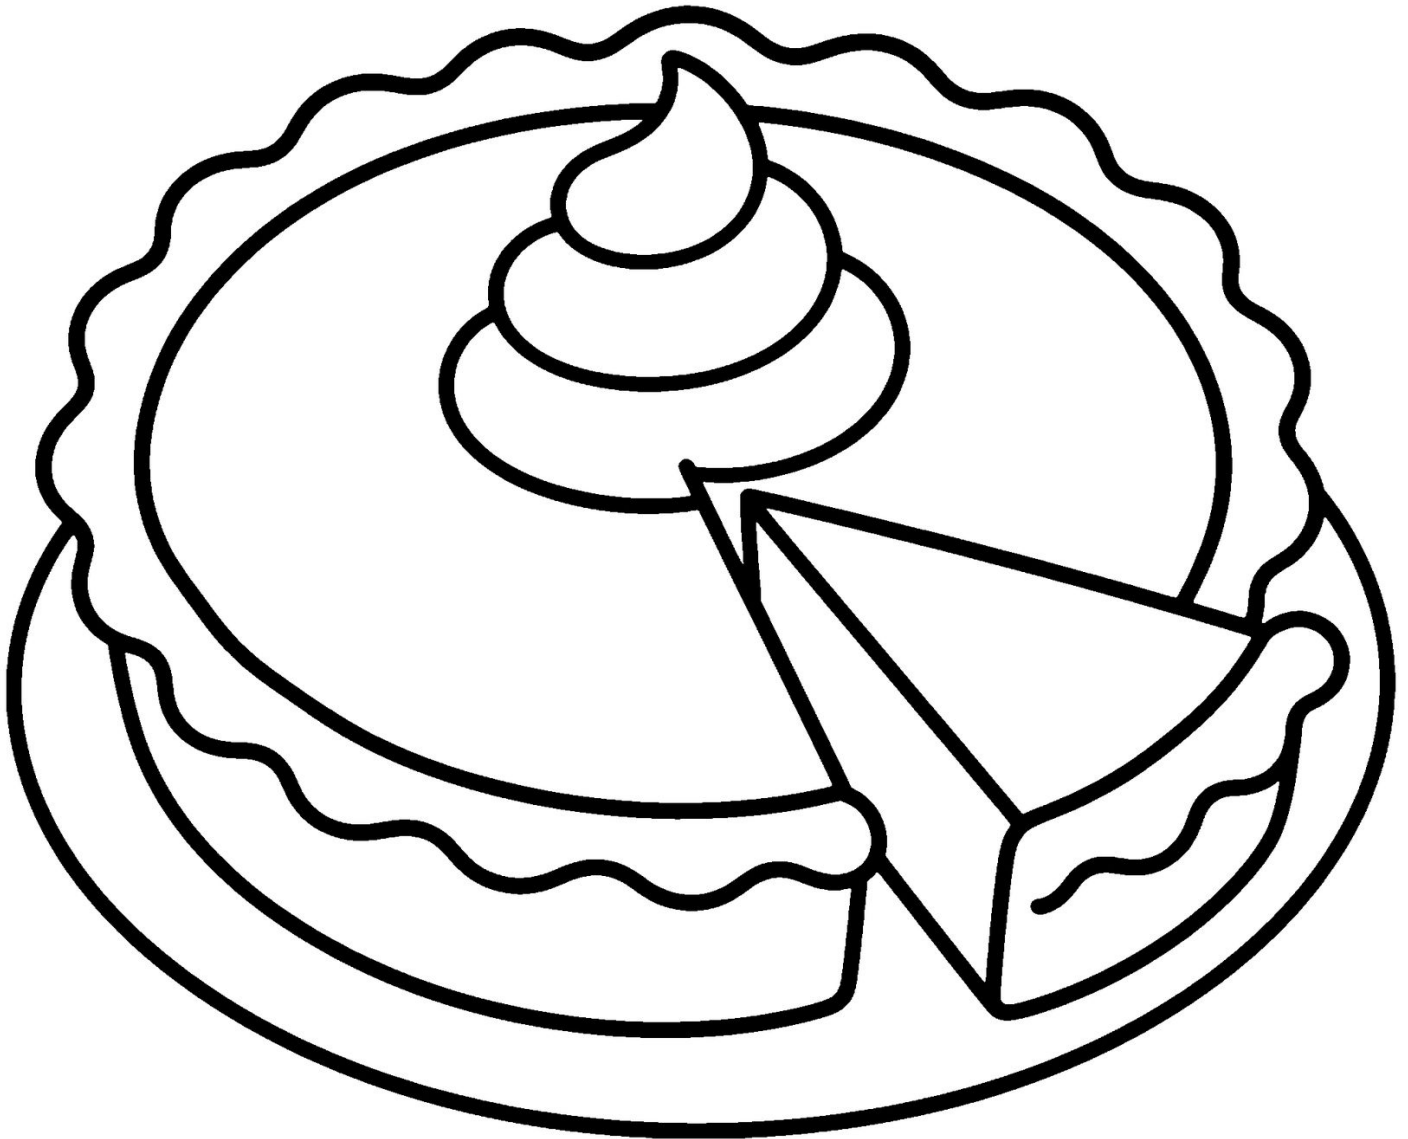

A big pumpkin and two little ones, with leaves and curly vines. Which one would you pick?

Something I grew, made or picked myself:

A whole pumpkin pie

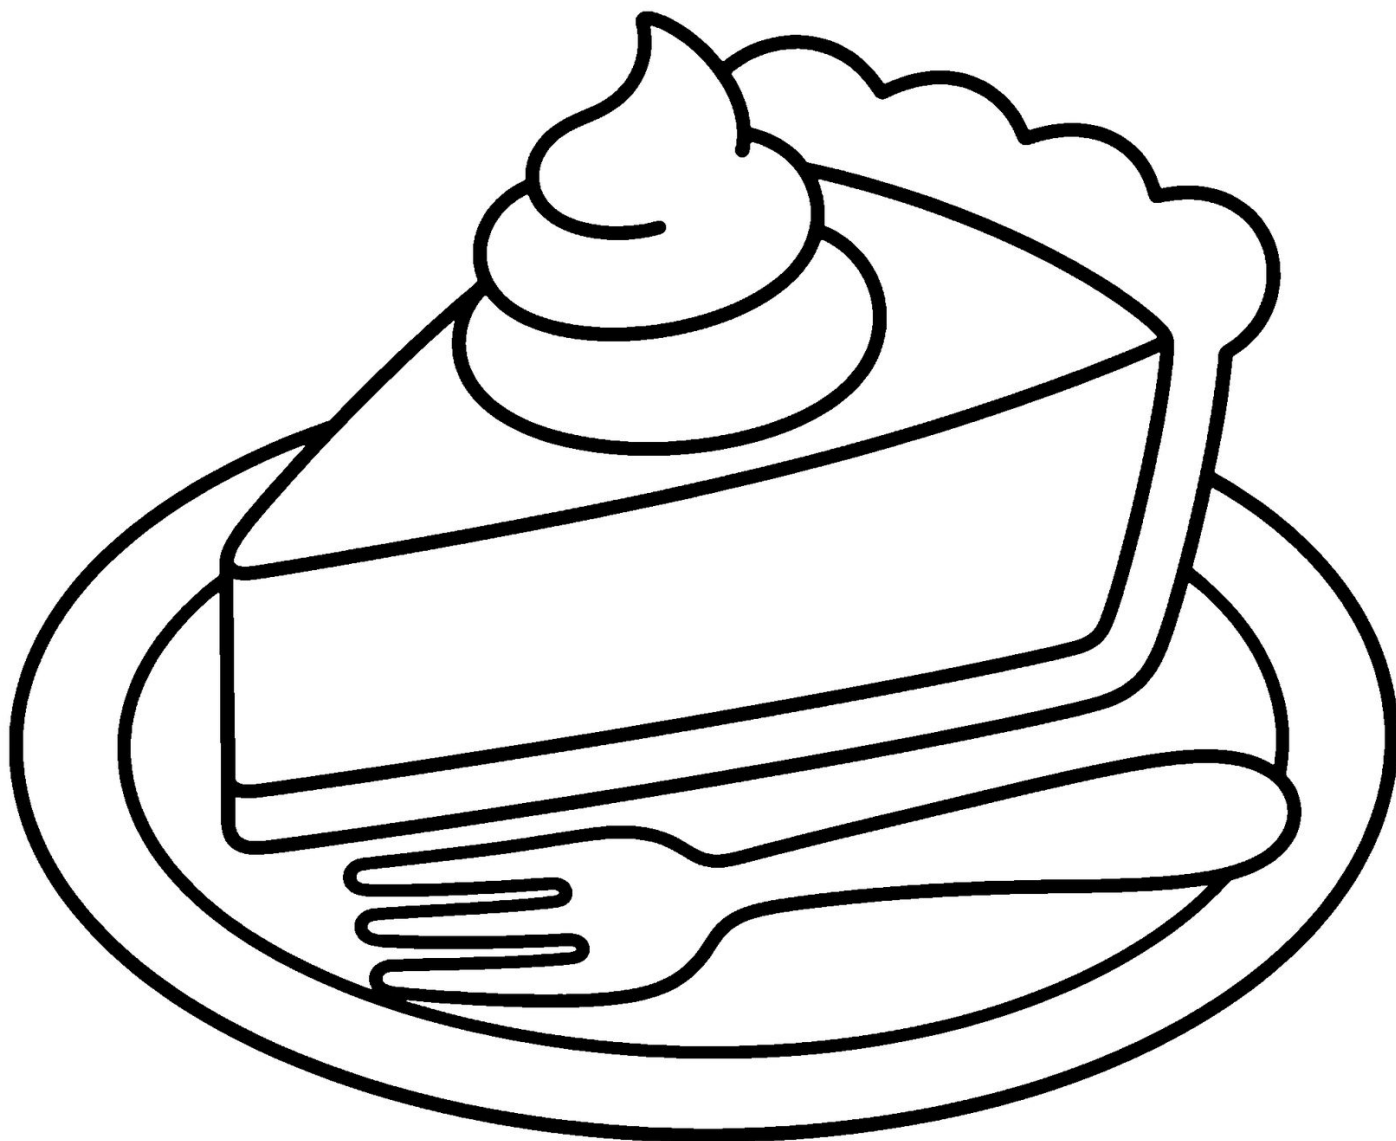

Whipped cream on top, and one slice already on its way out. Who gets it?

Someone I would share my pie with:

A slice of pie

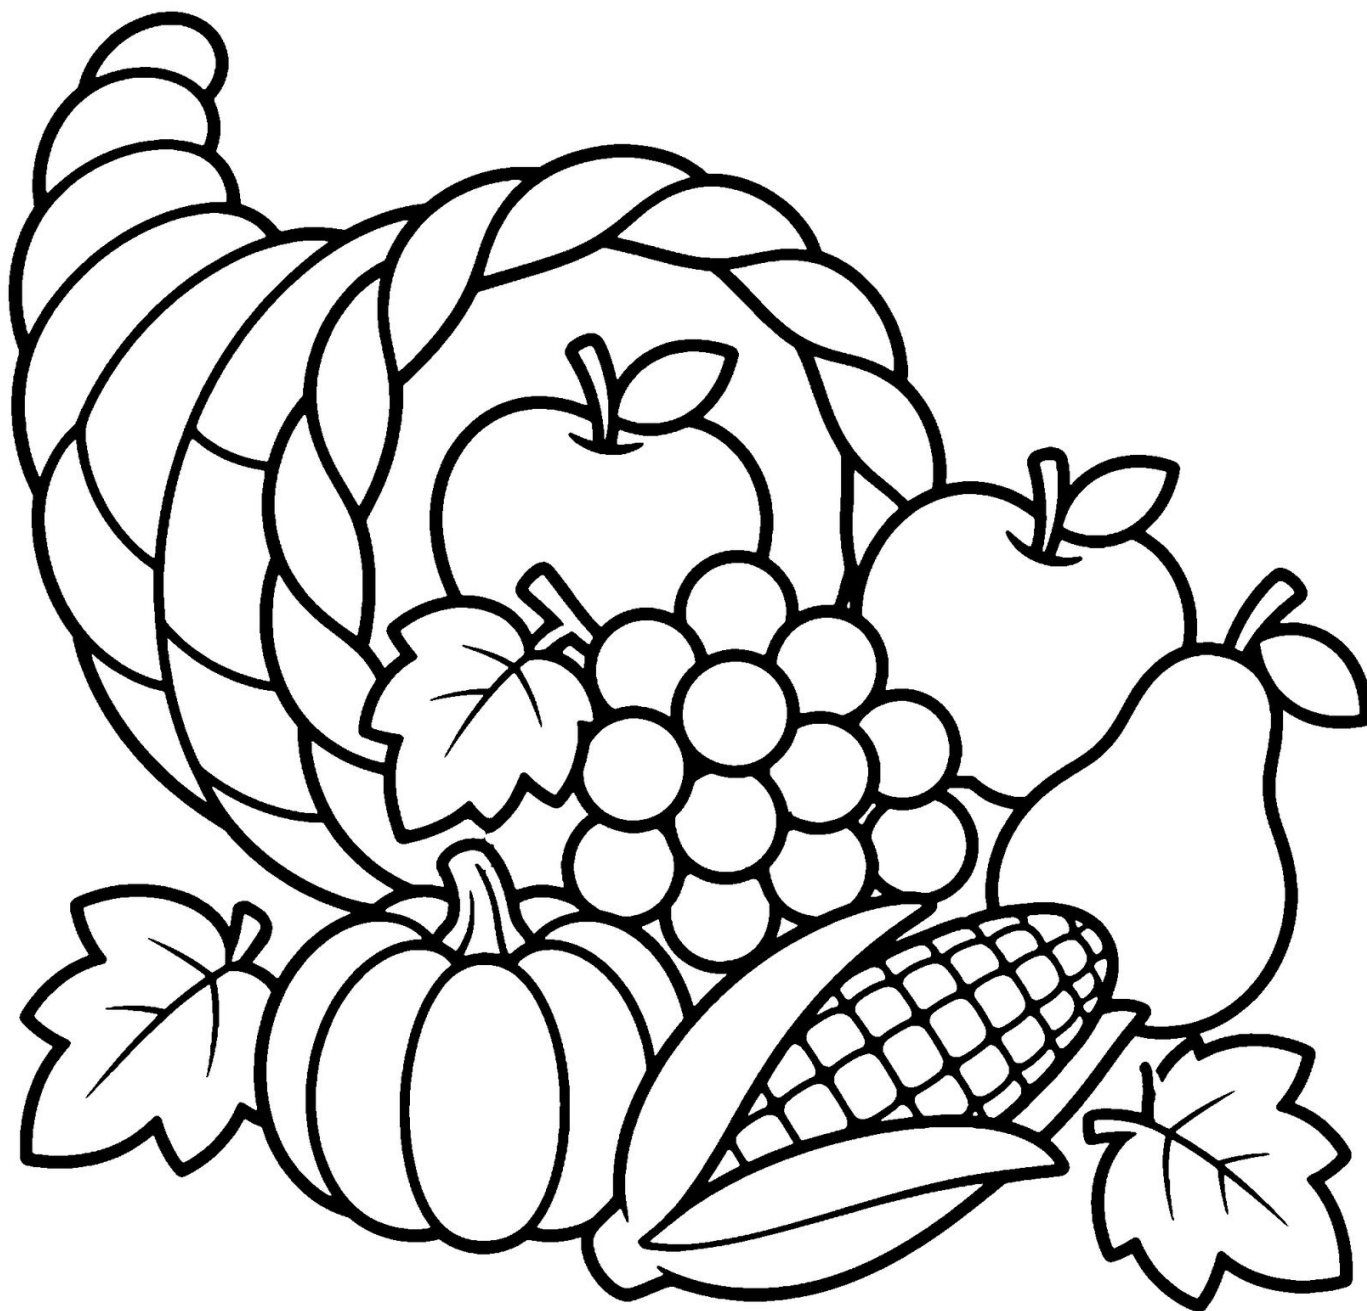

A slice with whipped cream and a fork, ready to eat. Pumpkin, apple or pecan? You decide.

My favorite thing to eat on Thanksgiving:

The cornucopia

A harvest horn spilling apples, grapes, a pear, corn and a little pumpkin. Lots of small shapes, for careful coloring.

Something good we have plenty of:

Autumn leaves and acorns

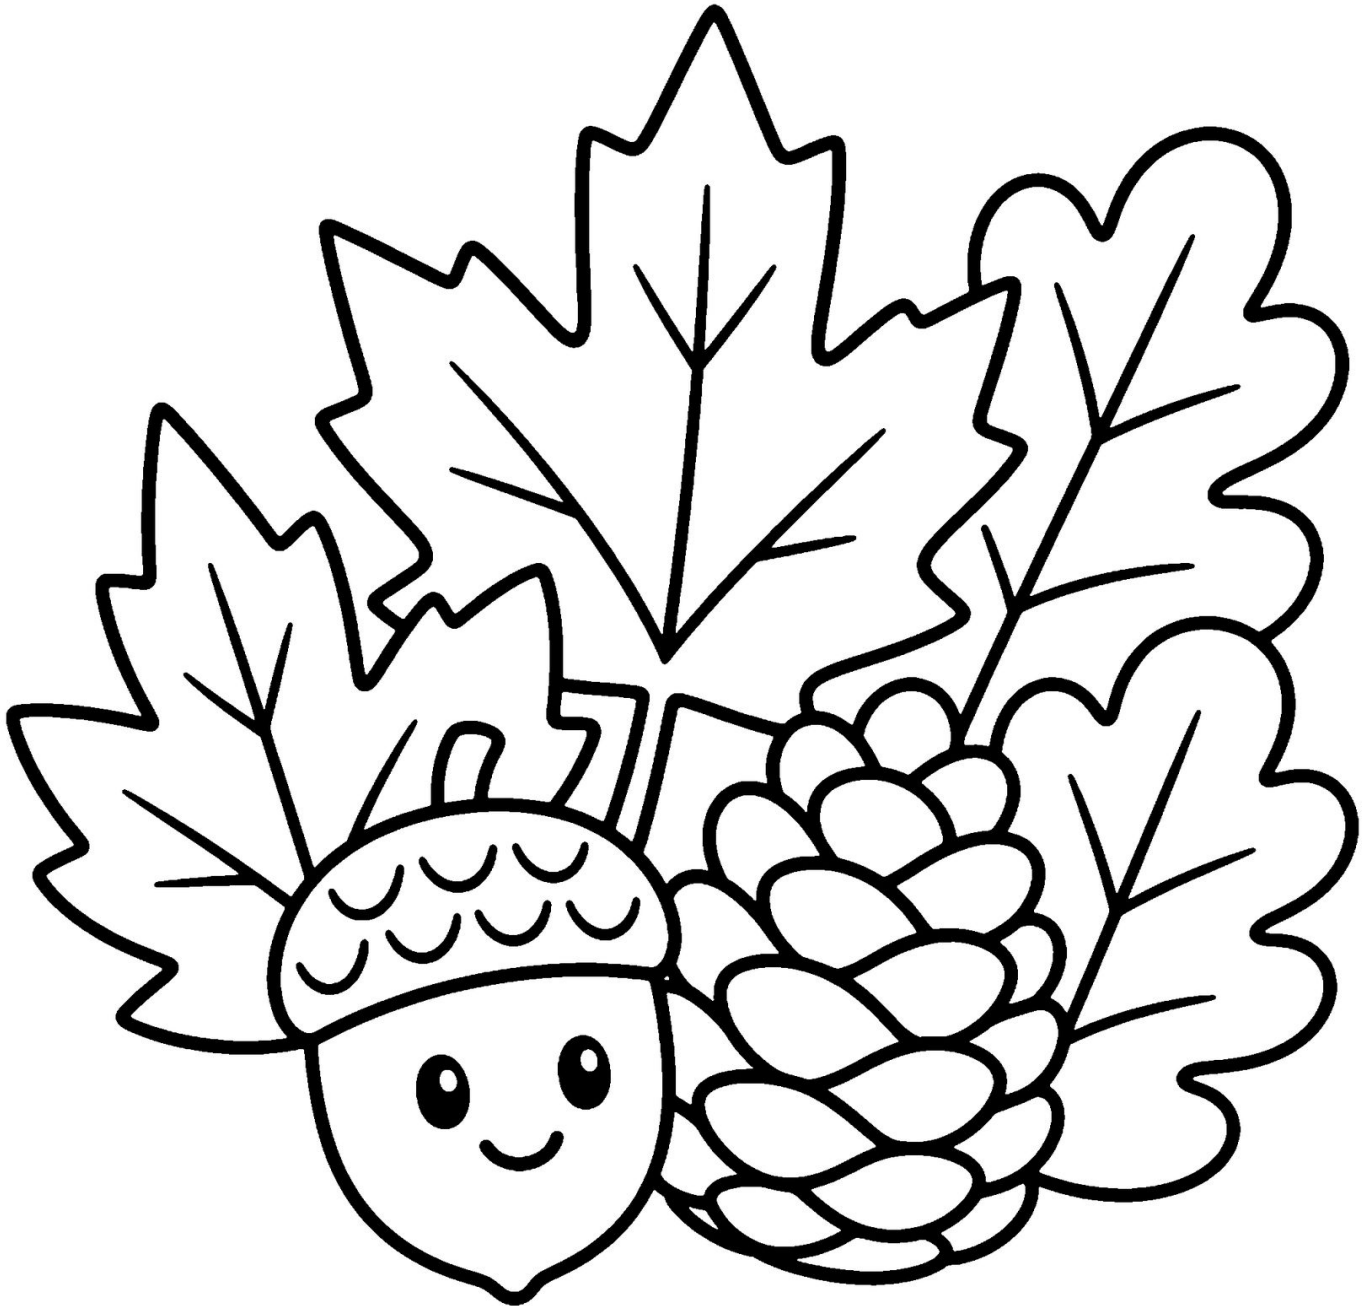

A maple leaf, an oak leaf, a round leaf and two acorns. Use every fall color in the box.

My favorite thing about fall:

A happy acorn

A smiling acorn and a pine cone in a pile of fall leaves.

Something small that made me happy:

A friendly scarecrow

Patches, a floppy hat and a little bird friend on his arm.

A friend who keeps me company:

The scarecrow with a sunflower

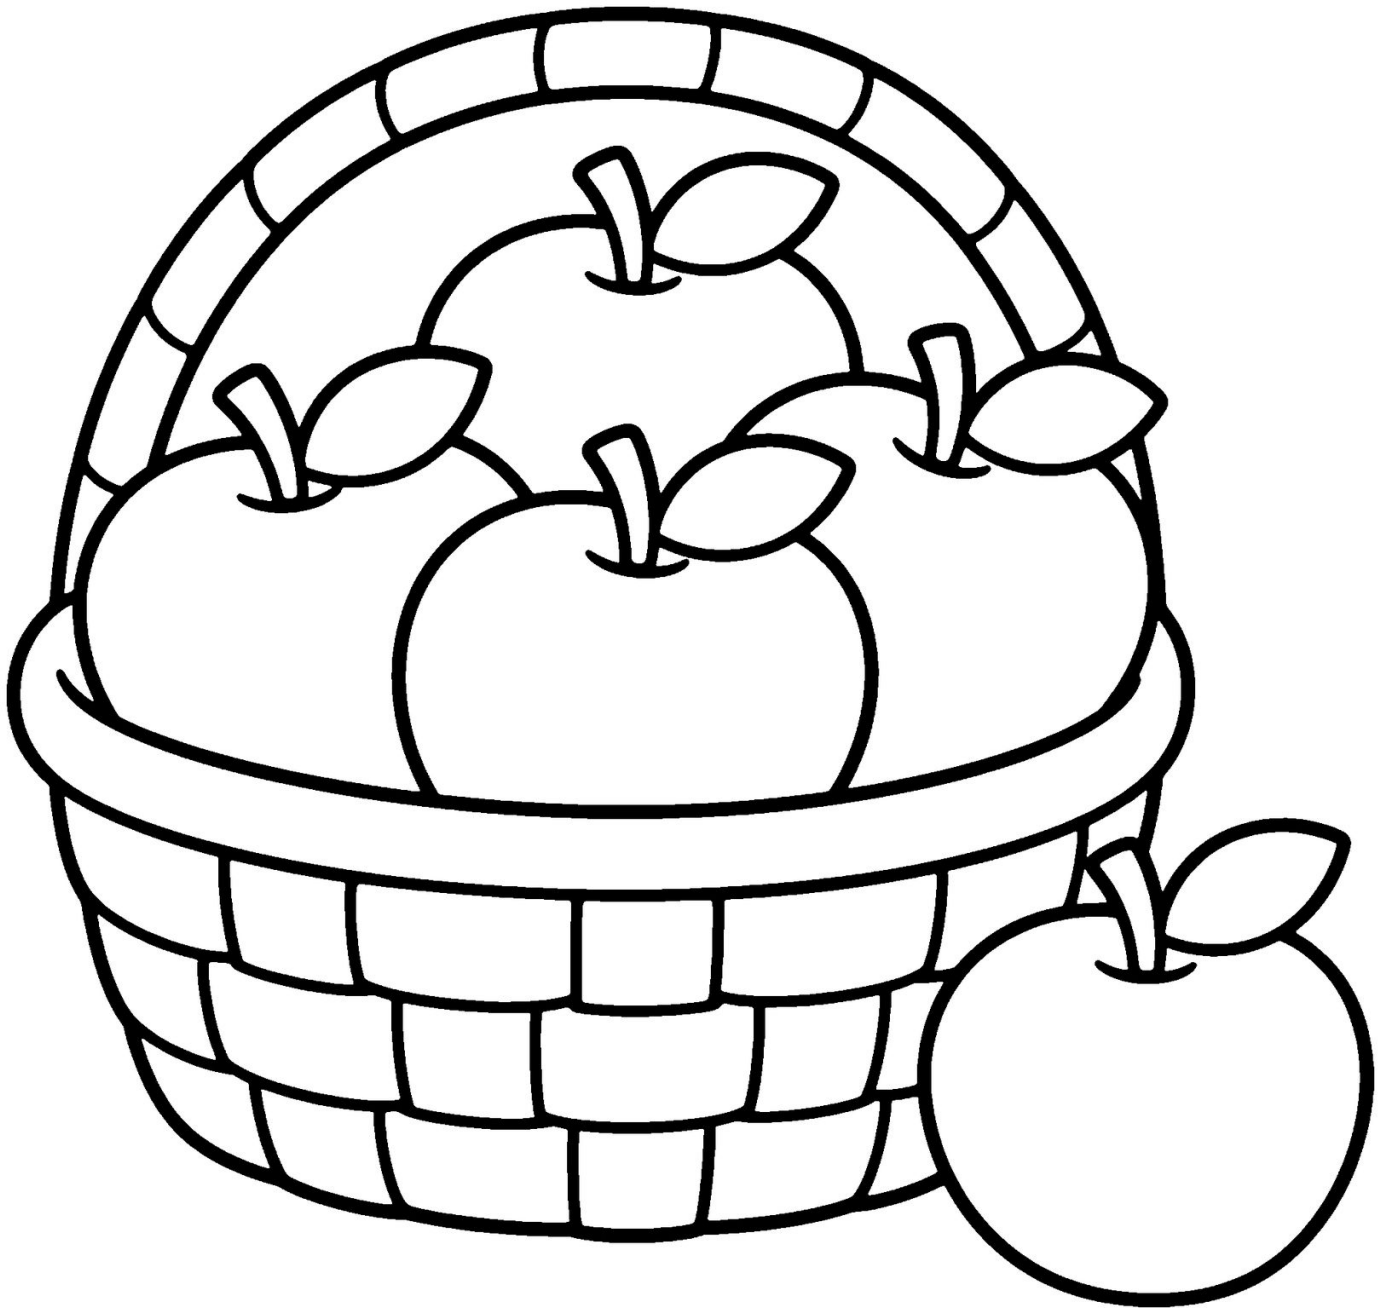

A checked shirt, a sunflower on his hat and two pumpkins at his feet.

Someone who looks after me:

A basket of apples

A basket full of round apples, and one that rolled away.

Someone who makes food for me:

The harvest basket

Apples, pears and corn from the harvest, with fall leaves around the basket.

A food from a farm I am thankful for:
